TOP-OF-THE-WORLD OLYMPUS COVE ESTATE

SALT LAKE CITY, UT

4523 S. Gilead Way

Olympus Cove is a smaller neighborhood situated on the slopes of Mount Olympus on the east side of the Salt Lake Valley. It's one of the most desirable neighborhoods in Salt Lake County, as many young and upscale professionals are taking up residence here. Most of the homes in the neighborhood were built between 1920 and 1960. The view from what formed a cove of Lake Bonneville about 15,000 years ago can be breathtaking, but you're not isolated as the neighborhood has quick access to Interstate 215 and Interstate 80, making getting around Salt Lake City a breeze. Skyline High School and Churchill Junior High are among the best in the city. Forbes magazine has ranked Utah the No. 1 state for business four out of the last five years. Salt Lake County is the home of the NBA's Utah Jazz, Real Salt Lake of the MLS, University of Utah Pac-12 athletics and was the host of the 2002 Winter Olympic Games.

ELWAY HALL

WARRENTON, VA

8394 Elway Lane

Set on nearly 300 acres of verdant Virginia countryside with sweeping views of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Elway Hall captures the timeless elegance and fairy-tale romance of a bygone era. This extraordinary, Edwardian mansion with approximately 20,000 sq. ft. was built in 1907 by prominent industrialist and railroad tycoon, Johnson Newlon Camden for his daughter Annie and son-in-law, General Baldwin Day Spilman. Her image is reflected in the two-story Tiffany windows over the grand carved oak staircase. The estate has been home for the past two decades to internationally celebrated American interior designer, Barry Dixon who has created a residence that brings the past into the present by incorporating the most modern conveniences while maintaining the timeless elegance of the Edwardian period.
