Built in 2021, Villa del Prato is a singular gem among Silicon Valley estates. Nestled in the woodlands of Portola Valley on a tranquil, private 12-acre parcel of flat land, the estate comprises three structures: a main house (12,000 sf); an entertainment or business building (6,500 sf); and a pool house (2,000 sf).

Inspired by classical Italian architecture, each structure is reminiscent of a Tuscan villa, featuring soaring arches, 20-foot ceilings, dramatic skylights, solid stone columns direct from Italy, and the finest-quality finishes. The main home, built on two levels, features a one-of-a-kind 900-square-foot dressing suite that doubles as a safe room. Unseen are advanced systems for the comfort and security of residents and guests.

Located on the northwestern edge of Marfa, 1011 West Washington Street is a modern dogtrot home blending a 1940s adobe with a contemporary guest suite added in 2007. Set on 1.5 acres of native vegetation and offering open views of nearby ranch land, the home features two bedrooms, an office, and a Jack-and-Jill bath in the adobe section, while the guest suite includes a vaulted studio space, kitchenette, and luxurious bath. A covered outdoor living area connects the two spaces, unified by a corrugated metal roof. The property also includes a backyard garden, mesquite trees, and a pet yard for enjoying the serene Marfa setting.
